Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Sunday 24 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cold but bright, turning to scattered wintry showers overnight.

Today:
Overnight frost and any fog slowly clearing in most areas to leave a dry but very cold day with bright or sunny spells. More cloud likely in the south, perhaps giving some patchy light snow. Some risk of ice. Maximum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Tonight:
A cold, frosty night, with a risk of ice. Early clear periods, but cloud coming in from the north and west bringing scattered showers, sometimes heavy, with sleet or snow. Minimum temperature -5 deg C (23 deg F).

Monday:
A frosty, locally foggy start. Some bright spells developing, though with scattered wintry showers, particularly in the north. Fog potentially lingering all day in some northern areas. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Tuesday dry and cold with good sunny spells. Wednesday and Thursday cloudy with strong winds and rain, locally heavy, likely wintry over hills.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.